A Real Christmas Tree at Ste. Genevieve.

A "real" Christmas tree, supported by its own roots, developed by the hand of God into the realistic type of a huge cedar which has long served as the emblem of the joyous season we are about to enter, and standing majestically in the large church yard, a short distance from the Catholic Church at Ste. Genevieve, Mo., will again be used as the community Christmas tree by the residents of that historic city.

For the past several years this natural Christmas tree has been illuminated and decorated during the holidays, forming the background for the stage upon which have gathered the people of Ste. Genevieve, their numerous out-of-town guests and residents of the surrounding communities to exchange greetings and bestow gifts. Its presence appropriately within the shadow of the Church of Ste. Genevieve, wherein worship descendants of the oldest Catholic congregation in Missouri, provides a sacred inspiration and realism for the celebration of a feast which in too many forms of observance is regrettably lacking.

It is unnecessary for the city officials and philanthropic societies of Ste. Genevieve to seek the forests in quest of a Christmas tree sufficient in proportions to satisfy the desires of Santa's little beneficiaries, for God in His "own yard" has grown the tree, and the venerable, white-haired pastor, Rev. Father van Turenhout, has placed it at the disposal of the good people of Ste. Genevieve and the people dress it up for the occasion. The distribution of goodies and Christmas cheer takes place within the influence of this beautiful portrayal commemorative of the birth of the Christ child.

And thus is Ste. Genevieve, the city which the State of Missouri honors as its oldest and the Catholic people look upon in reverence and admiration as one of the first parishes in the Central West, crowned with another distinction enjoyed by few, if any other communities. God has provided this sacred spot, upon which many years ago was planted the seed of Catholicity which has yielded successful crops in the form of innumerable parishes and erected thereon a monument, in the shape of a natural Christmas tree, which will continue to serve throughout Christmas seasons to come as an inspiration of charity and good will among the people of Ste. Genevieve.—Watchman Advocate.
